

A TABLETOP
ROLEPLAYING SUPPLEMENT

COMPATIBLE WITH ALL
RULES AND EDITIONS BASED ON
THE ORIGINAL 1974 ROLEPLAYING GAME

How to Make a Fantasy Sandbox

Copyright 2023, Robert S. Conley

CREDITS

Written by Robert S. Conley

Edited by Joethelawyer

Cover Art by Richard Lushek

Layout by Robert S. Conley

Inspiration and Design

Joethelawyer, Tim Shorts, and Joshua Beck

CREDITS CONTINUED

Artists

Azukail Games, Jacob E. Blackmon, Bartek Blaszczyk, Daniel Comerci, Samantha Darcy, Dover Publications, Glen Hallstrom, Richard Luscek, William Mcausland, Malcolm McClinton, Jeremy Mohler, Louis Porter, Purple Duck Games, Dean Spencer, Mariana Ruiz Villarreal, Jeff Ward.

Some artwork copyright, The Forge, Maciej Zagorski, Pawel Dobosz. Publisher's Choice Quality Stock Art © Rick Hershey / Fat Goblin Games.

Some artwork © 2017 Christina Stiles Presents.

Some artwork copyright Claudio Pozas, used with permission.

Some artwork © 2015 Vagelio Kaliva, used with permission. All rights reserved.

Some artwork copyrighted Arte Castilh, used with permission.

Some artwork by Kelly Anne Conley.

some artwork public domain retrieved from Wikimedia Commons at <http://commons.wikimedia.org>.

Thanks to Matthew J. Finch for putting together the Swords & Wizardry Core Rules.

This work includes material taken from the System Reference Document 5.1 ("SRD 5.1") by Wizards of the Coast LLC and available at <https://dnd.wizards.com/resources/systems-reference-document>. The SRD 5.1 is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License available at <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/legalcode>.

This work includes material taken from the Swords & Wizardry Core Rules, 2nd Printing, Copyright 2008, Matthew J. Finch. Used with permission under the CC-BY 4.0 License.

This work includes generic monsters taken from the Swords & Wizardry Monster Book: 0e, Copyright 2008, Matthew J. Finch. Used with permission under the CC-BY 4.0 License.

Contents

Sandbox Campaigns	6
The Bag of Stuff	6
The Initial Context	7
World in Motion	7
How to Make a Fantasy Sandbox	7
The How to Make a Fantasy Sandbox Process	8
Sketching the World	10
Air Circulation	10
Monsoons	11
Ocean Currents	12
Example	14
History and the Main Campaign Region	16
The Eainians	19
The Dark Empire	20
The Eainian Empire	21
The Present	22
The Campaign Map	24
Drainage	26
Creatures and the Human Landscape	28
Placing Ruins and Lairs	29
Placing Settlements	30
Placing Locales and Naming Geography	32
Geography	33
Locales	33
Regional Background and History	34
Describing the Geography	38
Isle of Pyade, Terrain	38
Designing the Descriptions	42
Describing Lairs, Locales, and Ruins	44
Isle of Pyade, Lairs, Locales, and Ruins	45
Designing the Descriptions	50
Creating Plots	52
Fortress of the Lich Lord	52
The Threat of the Sahuagin	53
The Empire of Po	54
The Baron and the Sheriff	54
The Dwarves of Southpoint	54
The Role of Plot	54
Locale Encounters	56
Locale Encounters	56
General Encounters	58
Most Important Locales	60
0105 Hawth (village) Dwarf	60
0204 Sandpoint (village) Halfling	62
0403 Datha (hamlet) Human	64
0404 Carra (hamlet) Human	66
0504 Kathi (village) Human	68
The Home Base	70
0403 Mikva (castle, town) Human	70
Drawing the Town Map	70
Home Base Demographics	76

Detailing the Home Base	80
The Detailed List of Shops	80
0403 Mikva (castle, town) Human	80
Tavern Names	81
Final List	81
Creating Shops	82
The Shops of Mikva	84
1) Chandler	84
2) Finesmith	85
3) Finesmith	85
4) Herbalist	86
5) Jeweler	87
6) Jeweler	87
7) The Leathercrafters of Pyade	88
8) The King's Sheriff	89
Designing the Description	89
9) Mikva Trading Hall	90
10) Ostler	91
11) Temple of Veritas	92
12) Sea Brethren Hall	92
13) Resident Mage	93
14) Potion Shop	94
15) The Tailor's Guild	94
16) The Red Wench (tavern)	95
17) The House of Fish (tavern)	95
18) The Oaken House (inn)	96
19) Weaponsmith	97
20) The Weavers of Pyade	97
Final Town Map of Mikva	98
Placing the Buildings	99
Creating NPCs and Monsters	104
Amur Forest	105
Bay of the Dead	105
East Bay	106
North Downs	106
South Bay	106
South Downs	106
The Midland Sea	107
The Sands	108
West Fen	108
0102 Sunken Ship	109
0105 The Village of Hawth	109
0201 Spies	110
0203 Barrows	110
0204 Sandpoint	110
0401 Aventis	111
0402 Sableport	111
0403 Mikva	112
0403 Datha	112
0404 Carra	112
0504 Kathi	113
0505 Sahaugin Outpost	113
Important NPCs	114
What to Detail?	114
NPC Groups of Pyade	114

NPC Descriptions	116
The Barony of Pyade	116
The Thieves of Pyade	120
Dangerous Foes	122
Rumors and Random Encounters	132
Rumors	132
Random Encounters	134
Wrapping it up	136
Links to Resources	140
A Magical Society: Guide To Mapping.....	140
A Magical Medieval Society: Western Europe.....	140
Aedificium (Archived).....	140
Blackmarsh.....	140
Chivalry & Sorcery RPG	140
Cropland Texture	140
Fantasy Demographics	140
Fief: A Look at Medieval Society from its Lower Rungs	140
Harn (Columba Games).....	140
Harnmanor (Columbia Games).....	140
Hex Crawl Mapping Kit	140
Inkscape	140
Inspiration Pad Pro 3 (NBos).....	141
Lord of Men (Ars Magica, Atlas-Games).....	141
Lythia (Harn Fan Site).....	141
Mapping With Hexes	141
Medieval Demographics by S. John Ross (posted with permission) ..	141
Noble's Book (Pendragon, Chaosium).....	141
Pathfinder Gamemastery Guide (Paizo)	141
Random Treasure and other useful tables	141
Sandbox Tools	141
Serlby (Aedificum).....	141
The 36 Plots (Loren J. Miller).....	141
The Big List of RPG Plots (S. John Ross, Archived).....	141
Mapping with Hexes	142
Hex Grids.....	142
Joining Maps	144
The Vertical Half Overlap.....	146
The Vertical Full Overlap	147
Horizontal Overlaps	147
Numbering Hexes.....	148
Submaps	150
Wrapping it up	151
How I made Blackmarsh	152
Traveling	156
Types of Travel	156
Generating Encounters	156
Roleplaying over Rolling	158
Skill Checks	158
Placing Encounters.....	159
Exhaustion	159
Encounters	160
Journeys.....	160
Voyages	164
Trips.....	168

Introduction

One of my favorite things do with Tabletop RPGs is create interesting places with interesting situations and then let the players trash the setting in pursuit of adventure.

My focus is not to create any type of narrative. Rather, I focus on helping my players experience living their characters' lives while adventuring. It's called a sandbox campaign because like in life, the players are free to do anything their characters can do within the campaign setting.

This wide-open world with unlimited choices can be very challenging as a Game Master/Referee. The key to dealing with this challenge is organization. A systematic approach is needed to break down the enormous task of dealing with an entire world. Organized into bite-size chunk that one can do in the time they have for a hobby.

Sandbox Campaigns

To run a sandbox campaign, I've found that you have to consider three things: the Bag of Stuff, the World in Motion, and the Initial Context.

The Bag of Stuff

A sandbox campaign starts with the Bag of Stuff, all the things that the players are likely to interact with as they undertake their adventures as their characters. The three main elements I found that I need are geography, locales, and, most importantly, the NPCs.

However, the process of creating the Bag of Stuff doesn't end when you set up the campaign. As the players adventure as their characters, you will need to detail more elements-- particularly locales and NPCs. Luckily, you will find that it is not hard to keep up with the players. Once players figure out a goal, they tend to stick with it.

Lastly, keep in mind that sandbox campaigns are not just about the physical exploration of the landscape. They can be about exploring the social networks of the setting's inhabitants. This is why detailing NPCs, their goals, and who they know is often just as important as fleshing out a dungeon or a mysterious forest.

The Initial Context

After you create your setting, your Bag of Stuff, the player can create their characters. Based on their character backgrounds and the setting you created, you now have enough information to figure out how to start the campaign.

The single biggest issue that I have seen with Sandbox Campaigns is the referee putting the players on a blank map and asking them to explore. Some players thrive with this setup, but most don't. They feel their choices are the equivalent of making a random die roll and dislike the feeling.

The way to overcome this is to give the players some context. Information that they know as their character that they can share with the group and discuss. Then, the party can come to a consensus about where to go for their first adventures.

World in Motion

The bulk of the referee work in a sandbox campaign is to bring the setting to life. Specifically, keeping track of what various NPCs do or don't do in light of the players' successes and failures. The other part of this is paying attention to the goals that the players set for themselves: both goals for the group and individual goals. This guide will give you what you need to keep your prep time reasonable and stay ahead of the players as the campaign unfolds.

How to Make a Fantasy Sandbox

This book is about building your initial Bag of Stuff before the campaign starts by fleshing out a systematic way to generate the geography, locales, and NPCs that the players will interact with as their characters. You will find that individual chapters will still be useful when you have to detail more locales and NPCs as the campaign unfolds. Finally, going through the process will be a benefit to help figure out how the campaign will start, the Initial Context after the characters are created

The How to Make a Fantasy Sandbox Process

1. Sketch a world or continent map on one page.
2. Label important regions.
3. Write one page of background for each region, writing no more than one paragraph per region.
4. Pick an area roughly 200 miles by 150 miles.
5. Grab an 8.5" by 11" sheet of hex paper.
6. The scale of the hex grid should be such that it represents a 200 by 150-mile region.
7. Draw mountains.
8. Draw rivers.
9. Draw hills, using them to divide the region into distinct river valleys.
10. Draw vegetation (swamps, forests, deserts, etc.).
11. Decide where to place Population Locales. Note their race – this includes monsters with a social structure.
12. Decide where to place Lairs (locales that revolve around a home of monsters).
13. Decide where to place Ruins (locales that revolve around a special, notable, or interesting site).
14. Decide where to place miscellaneous locales (anything that doesn't fit in the steps above).
15. Name your geography (don't forget islands).
16. Write a half-page background describing the region and its history.
17. Write a paragraph describing each named piece of geography.
18. Write a paragraph describing each named population locale.
19. Write a paragraph describing each Lair (you could get away with a stat block).
20. Write a paragraph describing each ruin.
21. Look at your notes and come up with two to four plots that tie one or more locales together. Write a paragraph or two on each.

22. For each population locale, come up with three to five encounters. They should be a sentence each.
23. Come up with 6 to 12 general encounters for the region as a whole. They should be usable in any area of the region and be a sentence or two each.
24. Pick the 4 to 6 most important population locales and draw a quarter-page sketch map of the settlement.
25. Pick the starting location for the campaign and draw a full-page map of the settlement. This is the "Home Base".
26. Use Fantasy Demographics to get an idea of how many shops are in the town (Fantasy Demographics are explained later in this document).
27. Pick or create 6 to 12 important buildings. Write a paragraph for each.
28. Write a two-sentence blurb about each notable NPC or monster in the town, the first giving a brief stat block and the second a brief description of their personality and prime motivations. This is your roster.
29. Pick the 12 most important NPCs or Monsters. Write a paragraph describing each and fully stat them out.
30. Pick the six most common encounter types (City Guard, Border Warders, Bloody Hand, Orcs) and write a paragraph and fully stat them out.
31. Scan your descriptions for any regional organizations and write a paragraph on them. Fully stat out the most common encounters involving them.
32. Make up a rumor chart with 10 to 20 items that lead the players into the encounters and plots you created above.
33. Identify major regions and create a random encounter chart for each (monsters, wildlife, and NPCs).

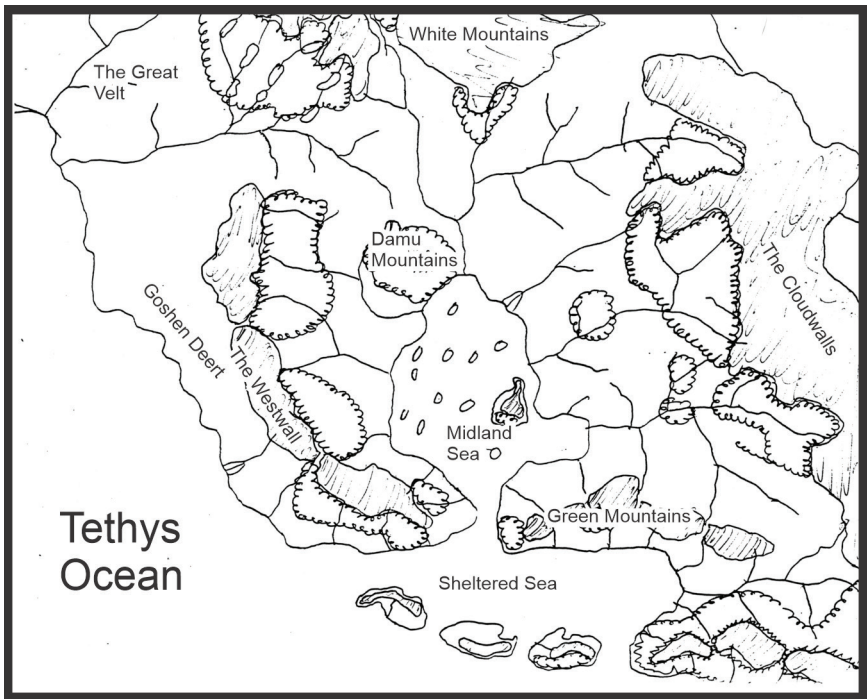

History and the Main Campaign Region

This section will cover the following steps.

2. Label important regions.
3. Write one page of background for each region, writing no more than one paragraph per region.
4. Pick an area roughly 200 miles by 150 miles.

Start by labeling some important geographical features. Do not spend a lot of time naming everything. Name just enough features for consistency and later expansion. The bulk of your preparation is going to be focused on the main campaign region that you pick.

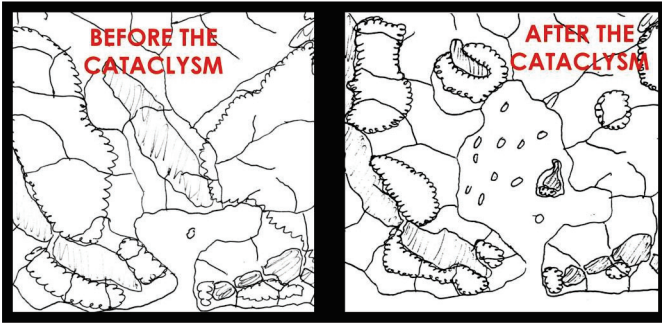

I named some geographical features on the map from above.

Now write, a one-page background for this area. The primary focus is to get an idea of who lives here, why they live where they do, and how they interact. For example, I want a really big cataclysm to have happened in the past.

I came up with the following:

The scale and scope of the cataclysm means that it probably happened over a thousand years ago. Otherwise the interior would be desolate.

Many of the images I am using have been altered with a computer graphics program. You don't have to do this. You can just make physical copies of your base map and jot down notes or make edits on them.

You can also jot down your notes about the region's history on your copies. Sketching here, making notes there, erasing things, and adding new notes is how I go about it. You just need to write enough so it helps you be consistent later.

Also, you don't have to write out an elaborate timeline. Something that might help is to take the base map and make a series of simple historical maps. Then you can write your history from them.

Doing historical maps allows you to see the big picture of your timeline in a very graphical and condensed format.

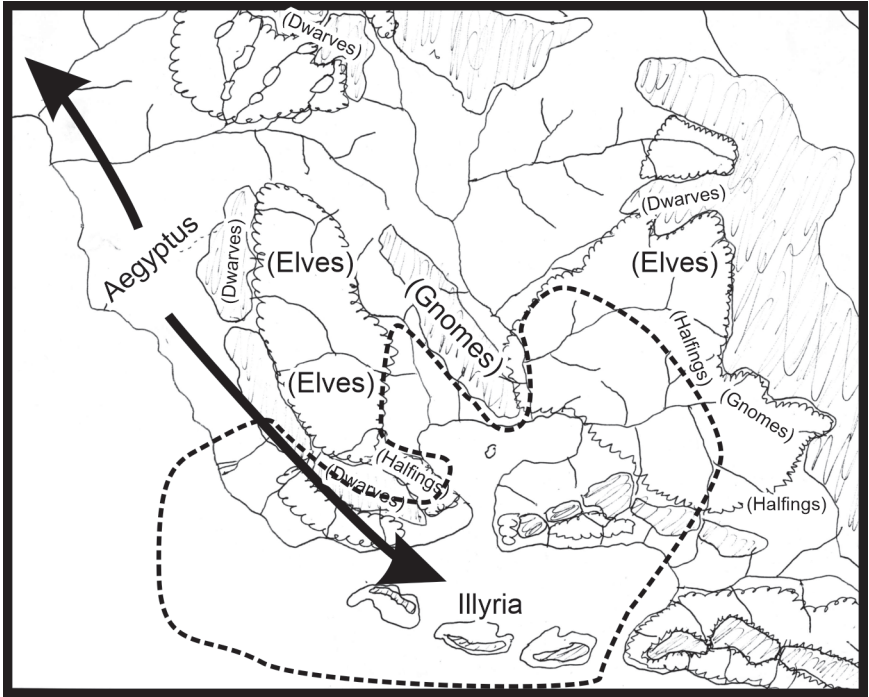

For my example, I started by placing the various races on the map. I am going for a World of Greyhawk style here, with distinct realms for everybody. As in Greyhawk, the humans will be driving the dynamics of the region.

I called my initial human culture the Egyptians. At some point, I would like to run some desert adventures, and the history of the Egyptians will provide a good background for them.

The Aegyptians delved too deep into magic and caused their fertile river valley in the middle of the Goshen Desert to die. One group of Aegyptians migrated northwest and the other southwest.

The southwest group established the land of Illyria. From there, they expanded throughout the Sheltered Sea region and, unfortunately, came into conflict with the demi-human (dwarves, elves, gnomes, and halflings) realms in the region.

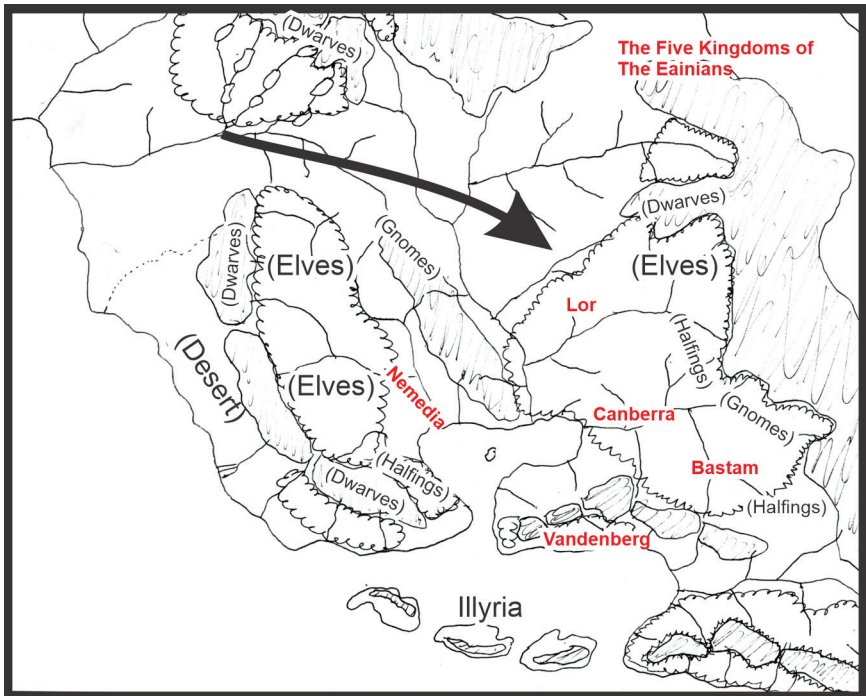

The Eainians

I'm a big fan of using migrations and the clash of cultures to create interesting lore and adventures. There is no better way to cause trouble than to have a new culture of humans migrate right into an existing one.

In my mind, I figured that the group of Aegyptians that migrated to the northwest caused trouble to the west. This caused a large group of tribes called the Eainians to migrate east. They ran into the Illyrian Empire. The Illyrians were in the middle of a civil war and were defeated by the Eainians.

The Illyrians were divided into competing city-states and lost everything except for some large islands in the Sheltered Sea and the southern end of the western peninsula.

The Eainian tribes eventually consolidated into the Five Kingdoms: Lor, Canberra, Bastam, Vandenberg, and Nemedial. Unlike the Illyrians, they had fairly good relations with the demi-humans. They were military allies at various times during the Illyrian Wars.

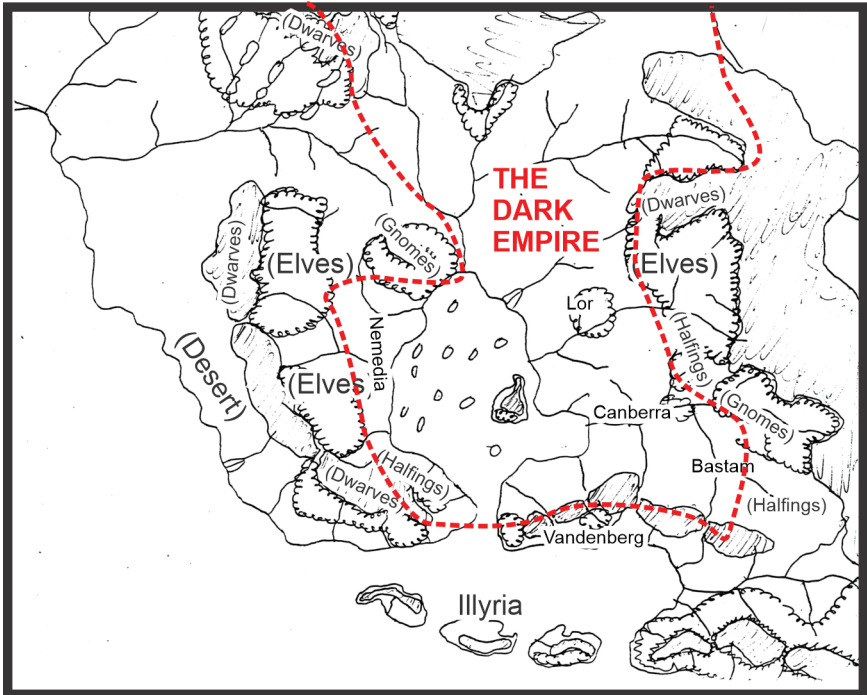

The Dark Empire

But the history of the Eainians didn't end there. I decided to go for a cliché: the Dark Lord. The Dark Lord is an Illyrian mage who turned to evil during the Illyrian Wars. He eventually wound up in the far north, which was the home of a number of humanoid tribes like kobolds, goblins, orcs, bugbears, ogres, etc. Using his wit and charisma, but most importantly his magic, he united the humanoid tribes.

Before the invasion, he cast the ritual that created the Cataclysm, which shattered the heartlands of the Five Kingdoms. As a result, the invasion is almost an afterthought. In the wake of the cataclysmic destruction and the war, the Dark Empire was established, and the Dark Lord enslaved the survivors.

The demi-human realms used the Westwall and the Cloudwall mountain ranges as a barrier against the Dark Lord's armies. As a result, they retained their freedom. The Kingdom of Vandenberg fortified the Green Mountains and managed to also hold off the armies of evil.

The Eainian Empire

Inspired by the newly formed United Church of Delaquain, Sarrath, Thoth, and Veritas, Vandenberg becomes the core of the resistance against the Dark Lord. Delaquain is the Goddess of Honor and Justice. Sarrath is the Dragon God of War and Order. Thoth is the god of wisdom and knowledge. Veritas is the god of truth and law.

With their demi-human allies, the forces of Vandenberg advanced northward against the Dark Empire. It took three centuries, but the Dark Lord was killed and his empire was shattered. In its wake, Vandenberg was remade into the Eainian Empire.

The Present

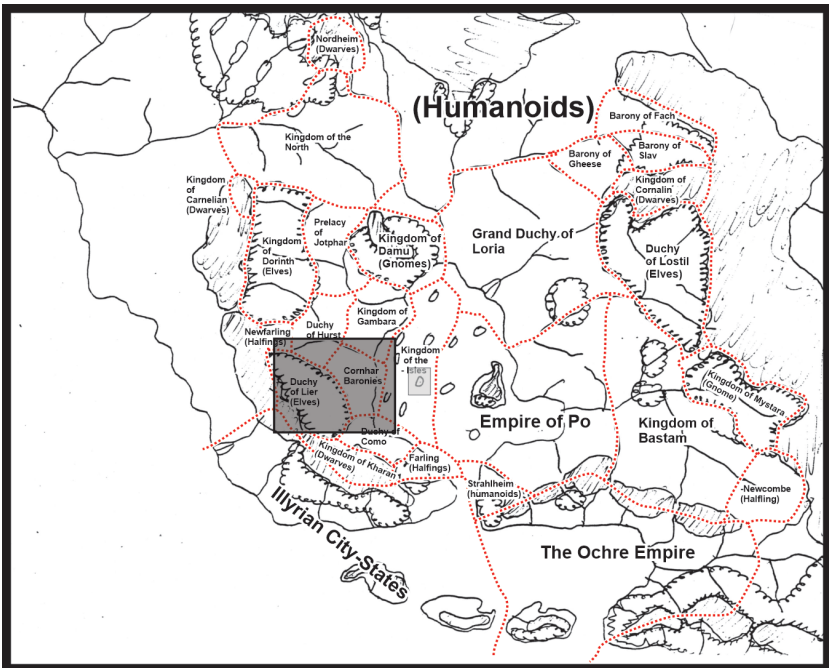

The Eainian Empire's golden age lasted for two centuries. But its heart, the United Church, was a fragile alliance. Eventually, greed and the lust for power overshadowed duty and honor, and civil war and religious strife plagued the Empire.

Whole regions declared independence, which caused more wars. The Eainian Empire shrunk back onto Vandenberg, where it came under the sway of the Church of Sarrath and was renamed the Ochre Empire in the Dragon God's honor.

A thousand years after the Cataclysm, the land is a patchwork quilt of realms dreaming of past glory. A few realms, like the Empire of Po, have turned from the past and are now looking forward.

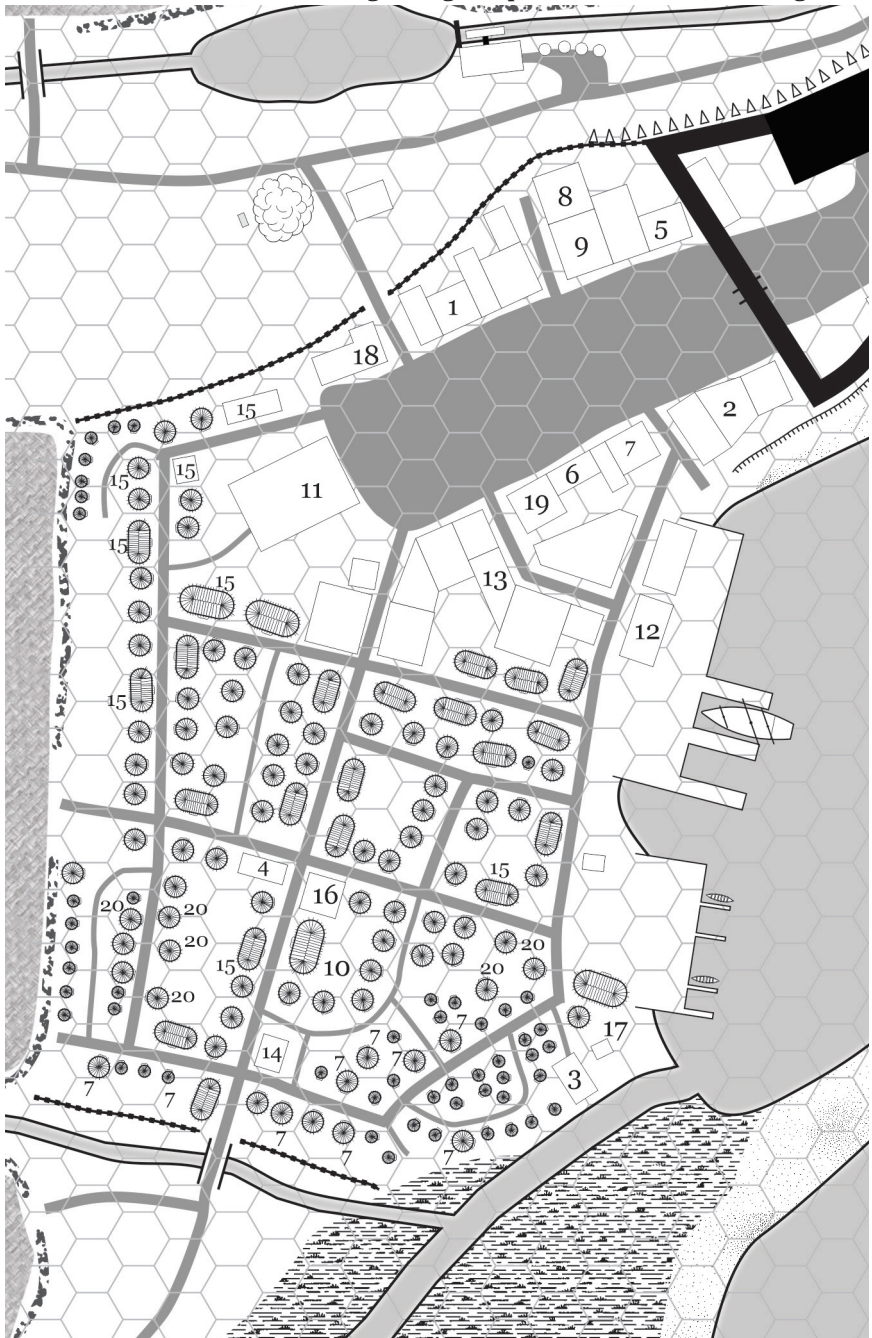

At this point, I have a continent-sized region with a detailed history, geography that makes sense, and a lot of realms. I'm using the small, shaded region for my campaign. I've found it helpful to have this campaign region be of a size that can fit onto a single letter or A4-sized piece of paper. A good scale is roughly 200 by 150 miles. For an example of a setting of this size, please download a free copy of my Blackmarsh campaign setting from DriveThruRPG.

However, for the remaining sections in this book, I am going to detail a smaller area. To make it useful for your campaign, I will choose an area that is self-contained. A large island in the Kingdom of the Isles looks about right. You can see it highlighted to the right of the large rectangular area.

Final Town Map of Mikva

In this section is the final town map of Mikva, thus completing Step 27. I've also included comments regarding the placement of the buildings.

Placing the Buildings

The leathercrafters, tailors, and weavers have multiple buildings marking their individual shops.

1) Chandler

Since chandlers more or less function as general stores I will place this in the market.

2) Finesmith

The description of Ecgric leads me to think that his shop would be in a better section of town.

3) Finesmith

Leudast's description and his connections to Pyade's Thieves Guild make placing his business near the wharves the local choice for his business.

4) Herbalist

Morath and Bernira's descriptions lead me to think that they would be in the common section of town in a nice building.

5) Jeweler

6) Jeweler

Both jewelers would be in the heart of Mikva, off the main market square.

7) The Leathercrafters of Pyade*

All but two are on the south side of Mikva near the swamp to keep the odor of the tanning process away from town. The other two are located near the market square, as they specialize solely in finished leather goods.

8) King's Sheriff

The sheriff has his quarters in the building at the back of the Trading Hall.

9) Mikva Trading Hall

Its importance means it should be one of the more prominent buildings in Mikva, so I placed it in the market square.

10) Ostler

I placed this establishment near one of the larger buildings, which has access to a large open space where they let the horses graze.

11) Temple of Veritas

This is the biggest building in Mikva outside of the Baron's castle. It is also positioned at one end of the market square.

12) Sea Brethren Hall

Placed next to the Wharf where sailors congregate.

13) Resident Mage

The description of Arvin Rowe leads me to think that his establishment would occupy one of the finer buildings in Mikva.

14) Potion Shop

Travin Caere's troubles led me to think his shop would occupy one of the buildings in the common quarter of Mikva.

15) Tailor's Guild*

The tailors congregate in the northwest corner of Mikva, except for one near the wharf, which does most of its trade with sailors and boat owners.

16) The Red Wench (tavern)

Located in the center of the commoner's quarter.

17) The House of Fish (tavern)

Its clientele means that it would be located near the Wharf. I placed it at the south end of the Wharf.

18) The Oaken House (inn)

As a high-end establishment, it would be located off the Market Square.

19) Weaponsmith

This is another high-end establishment. Fikki has his shop next to the Market Square.

20) Weavers*

Four of the weavers live in the southeast corner of Mikva. Two are near the wharf and mostly produce canvas for the sea trade.

Appendices

Links to Resources

A Magical Society: Guide To Mapping

<https://www.drivethrurpg.com/product/55266/A-Magical-Society-Guide-to-Mapping>

A Magical Medieval Society: Western Europe

<https://www.drivethrurpg.com/product/2018/A-Magical-Medieval-Society-Western-Europe>

Aedificium (Archived)

<https://web.archive.org/web/20041230083044/http://www.aedificium.org/Maps/LocalMaps.html>

Blackmarsh

<https://www.drivethrurpg.com/product/89944/Blackmarsh>

Chivalry & Sorcery RPG

https://www.drivethrurpg.com/browse/pub/3675/Brittannia-Game-Designs-Ltd/subcategory/6416_6429/Chivalry--Sorcery

Cropland Texture

https://www.batintheattic.com/downloads/cropland_texture.zip

Fantasy Demographics

https://www.batintheattic.com/downloads/Fantasy_Demographics_Version_02.pdf

Fief: A Look at Medieval Society from its Lower Rungs

<https://www.drivethrurpg.com/product/203217/Fief-A-Look-at-Medieval-Society-from-its-Lower-Rungs>

Harn (Columba Games)

<http://columbiagames.com/>

Harnmanor (Columbia Games)

http://columbiagames.com/cgi-bin/query/harn/cfg/single.cfg?product_id=4751

Hex Crawl Mapping Kit

https://www.batintheattic.com/downloads/Hex_Crawl_Map_Kit.zip

Inkscape

<https://inkscape.org/>

Inspiration Pad Pro 3 (NBos)

<https://www.nbos.com/products/inspiration-pad-pro>

Lord of Men (Ars Magica, Atlas-Games)

https://www.atlas-games.com/product_tables/AG0293

Lythia (Harn Fan Site)

<https://www.lythia.com>

Mapping With Hexes

<https://batintheattic.blogspot.com/2008/10/mapping-with-hexes.html>

Medieval Demographics by S. John Ross (posted with permission)

<https://www.batintheattic.com/downloads/Medieval%20Demographics%20Made%20Easy.pdf>

Noble's Book (Pendragon, Chaosium)

https://www.drivethrurpg.com/product/3241/Nobles-Book?cPath=74_31744

Pathfinder Gamemastery Guide (Paizo)

<https://paizo.com/products/btq01zq7>

Random Treasure and other useful tables

https://www.batintheattic.com/tables_1974/

Sandbox Tools

http://www.batintheattic.com/sandbox_tools

Serlby (Aedificum)

<https://web.archive.org/web/20041031230659/http://www.aedificum.org/Maps/Serlby.gif>

The 36 Plots (Loren J. Miller)

<https://www.rpglibrary.org/articles/storytelling/36plots.php>

The Big List of RPG Plots (S. John Ross, Archived)

<https://web.archive.org/web/20130115001339/http://www222.pair.com/sjohn/blueroom/plots.htm>

